AN EPISCOPAL PARISH

804 E. FRANKLIN ST

CHAPEL HILL, NC 27514-4193

(919) 929-2193

THE REV. STEPHEN J. ELKINS-WILLIAMS
Rector

THE REV. NANCY REYNOLDS PAGANO
Associate for Parish Ministry

THE REV. DAVID D. STANFORD
Associate for Campus Ministry

October 7, 1985

Dear Friends,

One of the major challenges facing a large, gifted parish is maintaining a sense of community strong enough to enable the parish, both as individuals and as a body, to "reach out in love and concern for others." (BCP, p. 429) If our focus is too inward, we become too self-centered and self-satisfied and Christ is not served. If our energy is only directed outwards, we lose our sense of support and belonging, so that our efforts lose their strength, and Christ is not served.

The Episcopal Churchwomen, whose ministry is reflected in this yearbook, offer a model to the parish for keeping these two emphases in balance. By maintaining both a strong sense of community and one which is directed toward serving others, the E.C.W. adds immeasurably to the parish's living out of its call to minister both to its own people and to those beyond its bounds.

On behalf of the parish, I give thanks to God for the example and the ministry of the Episcopal Churchwomen. May God continue to make it fruitful.

Faithfully,

Stephen J. Elkins-Williams

EPISCOPAL CHURCHWOMEN HISTORY

In 1881 Bishop Lyman of North Carolina asked Mrs. John Wilkes of Charlotte to start a state branch of the ten-year-old National Woman's Auxiliary to the (all-male) Board of Mission. Eleven parishes answered Mrs. Wilkes's call, and in 1882 the first meeting of the new Woman's Auxiliary was held in Tarboro. The purpose was "to do foreign and domestic mission work by means of money and goods."

The Bishop was nominally head of the organization and presided at the meetings. Each rector was defacto president of the branch, appointed all officers, and presided over the meetings. An 1892 Board of Missions report stated that a change from "auxiliary" to independence would "involve the loss of beauty, grace, and strength." The very need to make this statement suggests that some of the strong, graceful, and beautiful were chafing under male domination! Only one annual report of the women's organization is missing: 1893. Could it have included unladylike reactions to the men's 1892 report!

In 25 years the original eleven branches had grown to 123. From only making up "missionary boxes", the women's money now supported a missionary to the Philippines. Years of war and depression led to a new spirituality in the Auxiliary, and the women's obligation began to include prayer and study as well as gifts and works.

In 1958 we became the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese of North Carolina, not merely "auxiliary" to the Churchmen. The women themselves, in a 1913 convention vote, had indicated the majority were not in favor of voting at parish meetings; so, when we read that in 1920, "at the suggestion of Bishop Cheshire, the women began to elect their own officers and conduct their own meetings," we have to realize the Bishop may actually have been pushing the women toward growth. In 1937 women could finally vote in parish meetings. In 1964 the proposal was made that women should be able to serve on diocesan boards, on vestries, and as delegates to Diocesan Convention. It took North Carolina men three years to give their permission.

Just as women were receiving theoretical if not always actual equal status in the church, a paradoxical threat arose. There was a churchwide movement towards integrating the work of the women with the men's and doing away with the Churchwomen as an organization. Again it is logical in theory that a group of Christians working toward common goals need not be organized by sex. In actuality, which sex would control such an integrated group and would this group push for the rights of women and children?

The Churchwomen survived. By 1973 old branches had been reorganized, new ones formed, the diocesan budget was growing, the special gifts were increasing. Browns Summit Conference Center is the result of a 1976 proposal by the women to the Bishop that they fund a study and survey for such a center.

At the 1977 General Convention the priesthood and episcopacy were opened to women. In Hebrews 11:13 the writer (thought by some scholars to be Priscilla, a New Testament Churchwoman) says "they were not yet in possession of the things promised but had seen them far ahead and hailed them." Did any of those women meeting in 1882 dare such prophecy!
